Rep. Aiyash says his farewell

By Charles Sercombe

Hamtramck lost one of its own to represent the city in Lansing.

With the beginning of the new year, that spelled the end of State Rep. Abraham Aiyash's tenure in Lansing. He chose not to seek re-election this year, for reasons he hasn't explained.

Hamtramck did not have a representative elected from Hamtramck since the 1990s.

During his four years in Lansing, he rose up to be appointed as the majority floor leader, which is pretty impressive.

Although he is a Democrat, Aiyash was uncommitted in supporting President Biden for re-election. Biden eventually bowed out from the race, and Vice President Kamala Harris ran in his place, but lost to President Trump.

During his two terms, Aiyash was able to direct millions of dollars to Hamtramck for various projects. He also distinguished himself as a champion of LGBTQ rights, much to the displeasure of many of his socially conservative fellow Yemeni-Americans in this community.

Here's an excerpt of what Aiyash had to say on his Facebook page as a goodbye:

"Serving my community in Lansing has been the honor of a lifetime, with our work focused on building a Michigan rooted in social, economic, and environmental justice.

"First and foremost, I thank God for this incredible opportunity. It has truly been a blessing.

"To my family, colleagues, incredible staff,

This year's MLK Day celebration's theme: building bridges

By Charles Sercombe

Despite the frigid single-digit temperature, Hamtramck's celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Day on Monday carried on.

Last year's event was postponed because of even worse winter weather.

This year, as one observer remarked, was not only a celebration but also a sermon.

Keynote speaker Ralphielle Hill, who is only 13 but able to speak well beyond his years, gave a rousing speech that built on King's quote calling for "Building bridges and breaking down barriers."

He focused on an earlier attempt on King's life, in 1958 while he was at a book signing in New York City's Harlem. It was then that a woman, who was described at the time as a paranoid schizophrenic, drove a letter opener into his chest, nearly severing an aorta.

Doctors at the time said that had King even so much as sneezed, he would have bled to death instantly.

The word "sneezed" was repeated several times in Hill's speech, working on the message that, for any of us, without knowing it, avoiding one small act of mere sneezing could be so consequential, and instead lead one to accomplish great things in life.

"I'm so glad you survived the worst thing in your life," Hill said, speaking to about 200 people at the Hamtramck High School Community Cen-

He continued: "I'm so glad you walked into the new calendar year of 2025. This year you've been anointed to break down barriers and build bridges – the bridges that connect us."

The Concerned Women of Hamtramck, in conjunction with the Hamtramck Public School District, hosted the event – the same day Trump was, once again, inaugurated president.

As usual, the breakfast celebration included a talent show by public school students. This year, there was only one musical act. Instead the event featured students reading aloud their original essays on the meaning of the day.

The King celebration dates back some years, to when a former Hamtramck city department head, Yvonne Myrick (now deceased) organized it.

Myrick's daughter, Yvonne Spokes, remarked that the "dream goes on," referencing King's famous "I have a dream" speech about the one day in future America where the color of one's skin wouldn't matter, but that instead people would be judged by "the content of your character."

As for the students who spoke, she said "These children are well on their way to full-

City silent on immigration crackdown

By Charles Sercombe

During President Trump's first term in 2017, there was concern among city officials about his deportation plan for immigrants.

And there was also anger back then over Trump's travel ban on countries with a majority Muslim population – including Yemen, where the mayor and some city councilmembers emigrated from.

Flash forward to today, and Trump is back in office and planning a massive round-up and deportation of undocumented immigrants. This time around, however, the mayor and all members of Hamtramck's city council are all male, all Muslim, and all immigrants and they are not saying a word now about Trump's deportation plan.

In fact, many of Hamtramck's Muslim immigrants have embraced Trump, and supported him for president.

Although Hamtramck never adopted the concept of being a "sanctuary" city for immigrants, there were protections made.

In 2008, the city passed a resolution, still in effect today, forbidding police officers from profiling, or from allowing officers or city employees to inquire about a person's immigration status.

It also allows undocumented immigrants to receive city services.

The public school district has designated itself as a "sanctuary," and will not share immigrant status of its students with authorities.

While Trump was in office in 2017, Councilmember Mohammed Hassan, who is still in office today, dismissed Trump's threat of mass deportations, saying:

"Nobody can send anybody anywhere – not even the president."

And then-Councilmember Anam Miah added: "This is a city of brotherly love."

Also, later in Trump's first term, Immigration and Customs Enforcement-

City silent on immigration crackdown

ment (ICE) began arresting undocumented immigrants and those with criminal convictions in six states.

At the time, ICE officials said the crackdown was routine.

So why is the Muslim community in Hamtramck largely silent on the latest deportation plan?

Many in that community turned against the Democrats and President Biden for his administration's supplying weapons for Israel's war on Gaza, where now about 50,000 Palestinians have been killed in that conflict. Trump, however, has also been a loyal and strident supporter of Israel, and its conservative Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

There is a cease-fire in Gaza for now, but considering the volatile political climate in that region, it could fall apart at any moment, observers say.

As for the mass deportation plans of Trump's second term, some state and city leaders across the country, such as Illinois Gov. JB Pritzker, say they will not allow their police officers and agencies to assist ICE.

So, if ICE and other agents sweep into Hamtramck, which has long been home to newly arrived immigrants, some of whom are here legally but others illegally, will city officials cooperate?

That issue has not been discussed among the council or by Mayor Amer Ghalib, who personally urged Muslims in the Detroit area to support Trump.

The Review twice reached out to Ghalib, who emigrated from Yemen, to ask whether he would assist the Trump administration's immigration policy, but he did not respond.

Hamtramck Police Chief Jamiel Altaheri, who is also an immigrant from Yemen, said his department will give limited assistance.

"The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) are responsible for enforcing immigration laws in the United States," Altaheri said.

"The Hamtramck Police Department will not investigate or arrest people based on their immigration status, and our officers will not ask questions about anyone's immigration status," he said.

"The Hamtramck Police Department is not required to enforce immigration laws, but will assist the federal government if suspected individuals pose any safety risk to the City of Hamtramck."

Immigrant advocates are advising those who are challenged by ICE agents at their household to do the following:

- Don't open your door.
- Ask to see a copy of a warrant through the window or have it slipped under a door. The document should have the signature of a judge and the name of the person being sought.
- If they do enter your dwelling, remain silent.
- Do not answer questions or sign any papers without your attorney being present.

In Our Opinion

Petty politics once again taints city council

We don't know what's in the air lately, but last Tuesday's city council meeting was an embarrassment.

First, there was a call to remove Councilmember Abu Musa from his position as mayor pro tem, which is the councilmember who takes over the duties of mayor when the mayor is not available, and who would become the mayor if Mayor Amer Ghalib, for example, takes a job with the Trump administration.

The reason that Councilmember Mohamed Hassan offered to have Musa removed?

Apparently for falling asleep at council meetings, although it's unclear how this can be proved. Or, as some have speculated, Hassan was jealous of Musa becoming mayor.

Despite Hassan's accusation being off the wall, Hassan got enough votes to have that title taken away from Musa and bestowed on Councilmember Khalil Refai.

Refai, to his credit, abstained in that vote.

Next, Councilmember Hassan struck again, this time seeking to suspend City Manager Max Garbarino for one week with pay.

First of all, we're not sure what that would have accomplished, other than to interfere with city business.

The reason for this action had something to do with the complaints of some in the community over harsh property code enforcement, and also people getting code violation tickets for properties that don't belong to them.

To us, it's a trumped-up accusation, and we suspect there is an unspoken agenda behind it. Fortunately, that motion went nowhere.

What we do know is, these actions only cause disruption and division, and it's all needless.

While we understand that there have been growing fractures among city councilmembers, this latest episode ends the fiction that this council was immune from that which our other council bodies have faced.

Everyone needs to take a step back and take a deep breath. Or, as they say: Chill out, folks.

Emails point to councilmember as accuser of colleague

By Charles Sercombe

A few weeks ago there were several emails read at a city council meeting, accusing Councilmember Abu Musa of not being a Hamtramck resident and of falling asleep at council meetings.

Those emails had an unintended effect: a hunt for their author. A number of people suspected they came from the same person; moreover, one who was using a phony name.

Suspicion focused on Councilmember Mohamed Hassan for turning on his council colleague, who was next in line to be mayor if Mayor Amer Ghalib were to leave town to, for example, take a job with the Trump administration.

Hassan was successful in getting enough votes on council to remove Musa as mayor pro tem, thus scuttling Musa's chance of becoming mayor.

And that action further ramped up the suspicions as to the origins of those emails.

As it turns out, there is a reason to think Hassan was behind at least one email, that was supposedly from a person named "Omar Khan," which accused Musa of not being a resident. The email address that "Omar Khan" used, omra12@hotmail.com, is linked to Hassan.

A simple Google search produced that link between the email address and Hassan.

The Review also submitted a Freedom of Information Act request to the city for other emails that came from that email address.

Back in 2013, Hassan used that email address and Omar Khan's name in a communication that was sent to the city clerk's office requesting election information from the November General election of that year.

Here is the content of that email:

From: OMRA KHAN <omra12@hotmail.com>
Sent: Thursday, November 7, 2013 7:17 AM
To: August Gitschlag <agitschlag@hamtramckcity.com>
Subject: RE: Saturday and Monday Daily AV Report

Good Morning August, please E-mail me the total AVS report for Nov. 5th Election and also Election result by precinct.

Mohammed Hassan
> Date: Tue, 5 Nov 2013 13:33:05 -0500
> From: agitschlag@hamtramckcity.com
> To: agitschlag@hamtramckcity.com
> Subject: Saturday and Monday Daily AV Report

The Review reached out to Hassan for comment but he did not reply. The Review also reached out to Musa for comment, but he also did not respond.

At this point it's unclear whether the city or council will take action against Hassan.

Hassan is also facing possible criminal charges for violations related to the 2023 city council election.

Odds & Ends

Paczki countdown...

This freezing weather got you in the dumps? Well, how could it not?

So, one way to beat the cold weather blues is to think ahead – as in Paczki Day.

Hamtramck's own version of Mardi Gras is just a mere six weeks away. This year it's a little later than usual and falls on Tuesday, March 4.

Admittedly, Paczki Day festivities aren't what they used to be, but at least it's something to look forward to in these gray and gloomy weeks ahead.

New Palace Bakery on Jos. Campau and Yemans has already unveiled its special paczki for the year: The 2025 flavor is ... cookie butter! And you are allowed to call it Cookzki.

Try to pronounce that after a few shots of Jezi!

And the American Coney Hotdog company wants to remind you that there is also something called a Coney Paczki.

Now we strongly suggest skipping this description for those with weak stomachs, but for the brave at heart, this beast is a paczki split in half with a coney dog, and onions, placed in the middle.

For us, it would take many, many shots of Jezi to attempt to eat one.

Snow job?...

In honor of "World Snow Day" (a dubious-sounding holiday, we thinks) local Detroit-based lawn care company Lawn Love recently came up with Michigan's snowiest counties.

Actually, the scope was even bigger than that; they ranked 258 of the country's 3,143 counties across the 50 states.

Using seven metrics over three larger categories, including historical one-day, three-day and annual snowfall records, temperatures, and demand for snow removal services, they made their list, and they're sticking by it.

Before we get to Michigan – this is what we, in the business, call "building reader anticipation" – the snowiest of all those checked is: Coos County, New Hampshire.

Otherwise, the Top 10 of this list is dominated by Alaska to no one's surprise.

The only other not-Alaska counties in the Top 10 are Erie County New York at number 6 (no surprise, Buffalo); Coccino County, Arizona at number 7 and Sheridan County, Wyoming at number 10.

At the other end of the spectrum, number 258 was Honolulu County, Hawaii, essentially tied with Monroe County, Florida. The end of the list was dominated by these two states, especially Florida.

So, what of Michigan?

Our snowiest county on the list clocks in at number 18: Chippewa County "up north" in the U. P., pretty much at the bottom of Whitefish Bay (itself made famous for its nasty weather by sinking the SS Edmund Fitzgerald).

Oddly, Wayne County shows up as Michigan's fifth-snowiest (of those checked), at number 77.

Now you know and, duly warned, can go purchase ... a pair of snowshoes?

Vaxxed?...

The state health department is taking a jab at folks who haven't had their jabs.

We'll let their press release provide the lecture, abbreviated for space:

The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) encourages Michigan residents to get vaccinated, as increases in flu, COVID-19 and RSV activity have been observed and are expected to continue.

As of the end of December, 2024, trends in respiratory illness reached the highest levels so far this season at both the national level (6.8% of outpatient visits for influenza-like illness) and in Michigan (4.5%).

Michigan activity typically lags a few weeks behind the national trend, meaning the next few weeks are likely to see increasing local activity, especially as children return to school after the December holidays.

The majority of Michiganders are not up to date on the vaccinations that protect against these infections. Only 11% of Michigan residents have been vaccinated this season for COVID-19, and 23.6% have been vaccinated for influenza. It is not too late to get vaccinated against the flu, COVID-19 and RSV.

All three of these vaccines can help protect against severe respiratory illness, and can be given at the same time. Nationally, 11 children have died from influenza during the 2024-25 flu season; none of those children were from Michigan.

"With many respiratory viruses circulating and Influenza cases rising, it is crucial for Michigan residents to get vaccinated to protect themselves and their families," said Dr. Natasha Bagdasarian, chief medical executive.

"COVID-19 and flu vaccines are effective at preventing serious outcomes, including hospitalization and death," she continues. "It is not too late to protect yourself and your family this season."

According to state data, as of Dec. 28, 2024, approximately 2.5 million people have received their flu vaccine this flu season. This is well below the 4 million doses of flu vaccine that were expected to be administered this season.

It takes about two weeks after the vaccine is administered before the body builds up enough immunity to protect from severe illness from the flu. Vaccines are an essential health benefit under the Affordable Care Act, and are covered with no out-of-pocket costs by most health plans in Michigan.

Flu, COVID and RSV vaccines are widely available at local health departments, physicians' offices and pharmacies around the state. Find a location by going to <https://www.vaccines.gov/en/>

School Bell

Cold weather protection

This week’s arctic freeze caused a number of school districts, including Hamtramck’s, to cancel classes.

During these cold weather months, parents should follow these safety tips for their students and for themselves:

- Dress in layers: This allows you to adjust to changing temperatures by adding or removing layers as needed.
- Head and hand protection: Always wear a hat and gloves or mittens to prevent heat loss from your head and hands.
- Waterproof boots with good grip: Choose boots that can handle wet conditions and have a tread pattern for better traction on ice.

- Check weather forecast: Stay informed about upcoming weather changes to prepare accordingly.
- Stay hydrated: Drink plenty of water even in cold weather to avoid dehydration.
- Be cautious on slippery surfaces: Walk carefully on sidewalks, stairs, and parking lots, especially when icy.
- Know the signs of cold stress: Be aware of symptoms like numbness, tingling, or pale skin, which could indicate frostbite.

and most importantly, to the people of Detroit and Hamtramck – thank you for allowing me to serve.

“Together, we made great strides for our community, securing record funding and passing legislation aimed at addressing the injustices our communities face. ...

“There is still much work to be done here at home for families in Michigan and for those suffering through genocide in places like Gaza.

“Stay tuned in the coming months to hear what lies ahead as we continue to fight for greater justice, no matter who it is for or against.

Today, Rep. Tonya Myers Phillips (D-Detroit) assumes office, and I am confident she will do an outstanding job serving the people of Highland Park, Hamtramck, and Detroit.

“We’re in this together.”
